

Suite and Apartment Living Agreement

Sharing a space and living with others requires that all those living in a space discuss preferences, comfort levels, and abilities, and form agreements regarding shared spaces, guests visiting, cleanliness, and the use of each other's belongings, etc. Putting your shared understanding in writing is often the best way to avoid verbal agreements being forgotten or misinterpreted as time passes. This agreement is meant to help in discussing and compromising on topics that can cause friction within a living environment.

Please familiarize yourself with USC's Housing policies prior to completing this agreement by visiting this webpage.

Building: La Sorbonne

Apartment/Suite Number: 202

Name of Roommate/Suitemates: Edwin Huang, Chris Gardner

Date: 08/25

Cleanliness

How often will the trash be taken out? Once a week

How often will the shared spaces and individual rooms be cleaned? Once a week

How will we take turns completing these tasks? Once a week

If we share a kitchen, how often will we clean dishes, the refrigerator, stove, common spaces, etc.?

What expectations do we all have concerning bathroom cleanliness?

What is our chore plan?

How will we decide who purchases cleaning supplies?

Do you have any allergies that are important for your roommates to know about (cats, dogs, peanuts, other)?

How can you optimize your cleaning schedule to keep those allergies in mind?

Kitchen: dishes are washed daily and never left overnight; the refrigerator, stove, and common counters are wiped down every Sunday. Bathroom: everyone wipes the sink after use and we deep-clean the toilet, shower, and floor weekly on a rotating basis. Chore plan: we rotate trash, bathroom, and common-area duties each week and track them on a shared whiteboard. Cleaning supplies are split evenly; whoever notices we're low restocks them and we settle up on a shared expense list. Allergies: Edwin has a mild cat allergy, so no cats visit the unit; Chris has no known allergies. We vacuum regularly and keep pet dander out of shared spaces.

Guests

When are guests allowed in the unit and individual rooms?

When are overnight guests allowed? What is the frequency you agree to guest being allowed in the space? Can guests use a roommate's belongings? (be specific of what they can and cannot use)

How will we communicate with each other if we want a guest to leave?

What does it look like to have guests of the opposite sex? Family members visiting? Partners?

Policy Reminder:

Guests must be registered and accompanied at all times. Guests can stay no more than three (3) consecutive nights and may do so twice within one month. In suites, each Resident is allowed a maximum of 2 guests at any single time. In apartments, each Resident is allowed a maximum of four (4) guests at any single time but shall not exceed two (2) overnight guests out of respect for their roommate.

Guests are welcome in common areas with a quick heads-up text, and at least a day's notice for overnight guests. We follow USC policy: no more than 3 consecutive nights, twice a month, and 2 guests per resident in a suite. Guests do not use a roommate's belongings without asking. If one of us wants a guest to leave, we'll say so directly and privately. Guests of any sex, family, and partners are all fine with advance notice and mutual respect.

Sleeping

What are our sleep schedules?

What should we do if one person returns to space while another is sleeping?

Is it okay to use the snooze button? If yes, how many times is acceptable?

What are the guidelines for lights, temperature, and noise during times when others are asleep?

Policy Reminder: Quiet Hours are a minimum of 11pm to 8 am the following morning, Sunday through Thursday. On Friday and Saturday, Quiet Hours begin at midnight and end at 8 am the following morning. Quiet Hours extend to 24/7 on Study Days and during Final Exam periods. Courtesy Hours are in effect 24/7.

Edwin is usually asleep by midnight and up around 8am; Chris tends to stay up later (around 1am) and wakes near 9am. If one of us comes in while the other is sleeping, we keep the lights off, use a phone flashlight, and stay quiet. Snooze is fine but limited to two alarms, then get up so it doesn't disturb the other person. During sleep hours we keep overhead lights off (desk lamp only), hold the thermostat around 70 F, and use headphones for music or video. We both honor USC Quiet Hours (11pm-8am Sun-Thu, midnight-8am Fri-Sat, and 24/7 during Study Days and finals).

Sharing

What items (food, toiletries, clothing, school supplies, etc.) can be shared with permission? Without permission? Never?

How will we divide shared space (refrigerator, bathroom, closets, storage)?

What temperature will we keep our space at night/during the day?

When will we open the windows?

While studying, is talking/video calling via phone, TV noise, or playing music allowed in individual rooms or common spaces?

Shareable with permission: snacks, coffee, and school supplies. Personal items (toiletries, clothing, chargers) are generally not shared. Fridge, closet, and storage are split evenly. We keep the space around 70 F at night and 72 F during the day, and open the windows in the morning when the weather is nice. While studying, calls, TV, and music go through headphones or move to common areas so the other person can focus.

Space Use

What hours is it acceptable to make/receive video calls?

Can we host study groups in our room?

If sharing a living space, around what time will tv/noise quiet down?

Video/phone calls in-room before 10pm; after that, take them to common areas. Study groups are fine with a heads-up. TV and noise quiet down by about 11pm on weeknights.

Communication

How do you do your best to communicate with others? Text, call, email, in person?

How will we communicate with one another if we want privacy/alone time?

If a roommate becomes sick, how would you like to share/learn this news?

We communicate best by text for day-to-day things and in person for anything important or sensitive. If either of us wants privacy or alone time, we'll send a quick text or use a door signal, and the other will give space. If a roommate gets sick, let the other know by text so we can keep our distance, disinfect shared surfaces, and help pick up food or supplies if needed.

Conflict

How will we communicate issues and/or concerns when they arise with one another?

Do you feel comfortable discussing concerns in person or some other way?

When will we connect with our RA to address concerns?

Reminder: It is encouraged that you communicate conflicts with your roommate directly. If concerns are brought to an RA, they can assist in this process.

We'll raise concerns directly, calmly, and early, in person when possible. If something can't be resolved between us, we'll bring in our RA together for support.

Things to Consider

Anything not mentioned you would like your roommates or suitemates to be aware of?

Additional things to consider include pet peeves, stressors, communication preferences, religious accommodations, health needs/concerns, animal comfortabilities, views of alcohol, drugs/smoking, general living habits, comforts, etc.

Are there any final thoughts you'd like to discuss?

Pet peeves: dishes left overnight and borrowing without asking. We're both focused on academics, so a quiet study environment matters. No smoking in the unit; alcohol only if of age and kept low-key. We'll respect each other's religious practices and health needs and check in regularly to keep things comfortable.

Living Agreements and Policies

As previously stated, it is best to communicate directly with your roommates to voice concerns or issues when they arise. Your RA is here to assist in that process should you need additional support or guidance voicing any concerns. If any resident reports about any policy violations occurring in the community, those concerns may be subject to the Residential Review process. By signing the USC Housing Contract, you agree to comply with all policies as outlined.
